~ Clarendon House ~ ~ Woolmer's Estate ~
9.30 am – 3.30 pm

(Entry into Clarendon and Guided House Tour @ Woolmers included – lunch not included)

Visit the National Trust's Clarendon at Nile. Clarendon is one of Australia's most imposing and romantic pastoral homesteads. The house, attributed to convict architect, James Blackburn, features a double storey portico reminiscent of the mansions of the American South.

Clarendon was built in 1838. Set in seven hectares of riverside parklands, the house retains its service wing, walled garden, impressive rural outbuildings, convict quarters and rare elm avenue. Furnished to the 1838-1850 period, the house also features changing exhibitions historic fashion from the 1830's to 1960.

Lunch will be available at Longford (not included in tour pricing) followed by a visit to Woolmer's Estate.

Woolmer’s Estate is a unique and fascinating reflection of colonial life in Tasmania and is one of the most historically significant heritage properties in Australia.

A guided House Tour (include in tour pricing) of Woolmers House allows you to experience a special journey through time, from the establishment of the estate in 1817, by Thomas Archer 1st, to the last descendant, Thomas Archer 6th in 1994, and marvel at the array of personal collections and possessions accumulated through six generations of the family.

The precious nature of the contents requires that the interior of the house cannot be otherwise accessed.

Once completed, a self guided tour of Woolmers Estate takes you on a self paced journey back through time, around the various out buildings including the Courtyard and Cellars, Walled Garden, Chapel, Store, Woolshed, Blacksmith’s Shop and Cider House

Woolmers, together with the neighbouring Archer property, Brickendon, is one of eleven historic sites that form the Australian Convict Sites World Heritage Property. Woolmers & Brickendon were recognised jointly for their ability to convey the story of the convict Assignment System, which operated in Van Diemen’s Land until 1840.

The reviews indicate that this is a Fun and very informative tour with a great tour guide. Even if you're not a beer drinker it's worth the visit

Over 160 years ago, James Boag moved halfway around the world from Scotland to the untamed island of Tasmania.

There he began brewing in the township of Launceston on the banks of the Esk River, with the hamble plan of using the outstanding local water and ingredients to produce the finest beer in the world.

Today, the brewery has become the beating heart for the people of Tasmania,

From employing generations of proud brewers, to celebrating milestone, they have continued to follow the same philosophy of James Boag, brewing every drop of their world renown beer from the same brewery in Launceston, using James Boags traditional brewing techniques and the finest product on earth.

Award-Winning Tasmanian paddock to plate dairy.
Proudly Australian grown, made, owned and managed

FAMILY-OWNED SINCE 1908

It all started with a few sheep, a paddock full of vegetables and a herd of dairy cows.

This was Eddington Farm, Ashgrove's original parcel of land, in 1908.

Back in those days, 'pasture-raised' and 'organic' were just the norm, and family enterprises like Eddington provided top-notch products for their community.

But as the years marched on, the value of dairy took a tumble. Big players flooded the market with cheap milk and made it tough for local farmers to compete on price.

Brothers, Michael and John Bennett AM were born and raised on Eddington Farm in the 1940s, and together with their wives Maureen and Connie, formed the Ashgrove Farm partnership in 1983.

Their goal was to gain independence from low commodity prices by adding extra value to their milk.

So they took a leap of faith and became on-farm dairy manufacturers establishing the Ashgrove Farm Factory and specialising in premium quality, traditionally-styled cheese at the source.

This pasture-to-plate philosophy differentiates Ashgrove to this day.
